The following battleground survey was conducted by OnMessage Inc. in 6 Senate battleground states. Telephone interviews were conducted on May 2-6, 2022. This survey consists of 1200 likely general election voters and was stratified to reflect historical voter trends. The margin of error for this survey is +/- 2.82%.

Transgender Issues
As you may have heard, a number of states across the country have passed laws that prohibit biological males who identify as transgender women from participating in girls’ sports programs both in K-12 and at the collegiate level. Do you support or oppose this kind of law?

As you may have heard, there has recently been a debate regarding trans women competing in women’s high school and college sports. Specifically, I’m referring to biological males who now identify as female. With this in mind please tell me which of the following comes closest to your opinion.

Some people say that biological males should not be allowed to compete in women’s sports. They say that they have a clear, unfair advantage and allowing them to compete with women will rob female athletes of scholarships and other opportunities.

Other people say that trans women are women, and that not allowing them to compete with the gender they identify with is unfair discrimination.

As you may have heard, there is a national debate taking place over the idea of children and transgenderism. As you may have heard, there has been a lot of debate recently about transgender children under the age of 18. Specifically, about whether to allow them to take puberty blockers, cross-sex hormones, and undergo physical surgeries to aid a gender transition from male to female or female to male. With this in mind please tell me which of the following comes closest to your opinion.

Some people say it is wrong to push children into a sex change. They say that children are not able to make such a life altering decision at such a young age, and that many often regret it later in life. They also say that even the early stages of transition cause permanent physical changes and bodily harm, including sterilization and other medical complications.

Other people say that allowing transgender children to begin gender transitions at early ages is life-saving medical treatment, and that studies show that denying them access to this type of treatment could result in suicide. They say that people who oppose this practice are only doing so out of transphobia and bigotry.

There has been a lot of recent debate on the role parents should play in their children’s education. One major issue has been whether schools should be required to disclose to parents if children are publicly identifying themselves in class as transgender. With this in mind, please tell me which of the following comes closest to your opinion.

Parents have a fundamental right to know if their children publicly identify as transgender, and schools should disclose that information if they are aware of it.

Some advocates say that kids who identify as transgender could face abuse, abandonment, or neglect by their parents, and because of that, schools should be afforded broad rights to withhold information from parents.

Some people say that Big Tech censorship is politically motivated and violates the principles outlined in the First Amendment. They say that these online platforms should allow free speech, even if they personally don’t agree with it, and that only constitutionally unprotected speech like death threats and calls for violence should be censored.

Other people say that misinformation is a real issue for our democracy and that Big Tech companies should do more content moderation to prevent misinformation from spreading.

While federal law allows for new parents to take up to 12 weeks off work unpaid, many parents do not have the financial resources to do so. Thinking about the proposal that Congress should require that pornography websites implement an age verification system to ensure that children cannot access adult content online, please tell me which of the following comes closest to your opinion.

Some people say that kids should not be accessing pornography online, and that pornography has been proven to be addictive and dangerous for children. This law is necessary to ensure that children are protected from harmful adult content.

Other people say that this law would place an unnecessary burden on adults and would infringe on their privacy by requiring them to identify themselves to the website before they can access pornography.
